

Endocrine emergencies

A very challenging part of medical case patients concerns the effects of the endocrine system on vital signs and presentations.

The endocrine emergencies program today will encompass quick overviews of parts of the system for a foundation and then delve into the presentation of endocrine patients outside of diabetes, the most typical.

Hypothalamus

Pituitary gland

Thyroid

Parathyroid

Pancreas (as with pancreatitis)

Adrenal

Kidney

Heart (ANP)

Others.

The treatments for most of the illnesses related to endocrine disease or trauma revolves first around recognition.

I will gladly share info from this presentation with anyone interested by asking you to simply email me at: links4life@msn.com noting the Endocrine emergencies presentation at this conference.

If you do not have email then feel free to leave me your contact information and I will forward info to you.

As with any patient we encounter, our goal is to “what is right for the patient”, we do this thru “Training, Instruction and Education” what I call... TIEing it together. Our knowledge of anatomy and function will serve us well. My recommendation to all is to have a good set of up to date emergency medicine references. Searching your local medical book store or “on-line” booksellers will assist you in finding good small pocket type reference books. I will gladly share my recommendations upon request as well.

Enjoy the conference.
